The Emerald Eye

It Proves Too Much of a Temptation

By CLARISSA MACKIE

In the Shanghai club the electric fans were humming drowsily, and Chinese boys stepped silently to and fro with trays of cooling drinks.

Frank Oakley moved indolently in his long white chair as another man sank into the seat beside him.

"Hello, Oakley," said the newcomer pleasantly, at the same time lifting a beckoning finger to a passing servant. "Ah, Langham! How are you? Thought you were in Hongkong." Frank sat up in his chair and scanned the other's dark, blunt featured face.

"Was," said the other tersely. "What's the trouble now? Must be something up or you wouldn't be here. You seem to camp on the trail of old man trouble," grinned Frank, pushing his chair across the table.

"Something is up. Can you spare time to be in on it? I've got to have an assistant."

"It happens to be my dull time. Count on me. What is it this time?"

"Oh, these rascally natives can keep their hands off the temple trou-

© R. C. H. S.

"It'll give you just five minutes to admire this emerald eye," murmured the emerald eye. "You know, as you know. Now they've got to robbing foreigners down in Hongkong. You know Mrs. Desbrow? She has a bangle on the peak."

Frank blushed until, "Oh, I know her," he murmured.

Langham's face was blank. He did not want Frank Oakley to know that he had guessed that the American was in love with the handsome Englishwoman or that in her refusal to marry Frank had been found a motive for a jewel robbery at her bangle. If he was going to trail Oakley it would be in his own way.

"Well, Mrs. Desbrow has lost a valuable gem from her collection. It's one that her husband bought from a south Chinese mandarin, a pure and priceless emerald that once formed an eye in the forehead of a statue of Buddha. She has worn the emerald as a pendant, and a week ago last night it disappeared from the strong box in her bedroom."

"A week ago last night? Why, I was there then," said Oakley thoughtfully. "I don't remember anything about it."

"It was not discovered until after your departure."

Oakley started and glanced sharply at his companion, but Langham's face was expressionless.

"You've asked me to assist you in your search. What can I do?" asked Oakley after awhile.

"I've got to go over into the native city, I expect. They say you know it pretty well that they have made sure of it and so forth."

"That's true."

"Let us begin the first thing in the morning. The only clue I have is that the same night the robbery occurred a trusted servant vanished and has not since been seen."

"Have you any trace of him?"

"I've been sent to Shanghai by one who claimed to know."

Frank Oakley was thoughtful for awhile.

"It is my impression," he said at last, that "that if you were advised to come to Shanghai the emerald has gone in the opposite direction."

"Why?" asked the other skeptically. "Oh, just knowledge of the Asiatic character," returned Oakley vaguely, and Langham was the more convinced that the American was concerned in the gem robbery.

He determined to permit the younger man to lead in the search for the stolen gem, but he determined to control the situation himself.

"Then you won't come into the old city with me?" he asked after a painful silence.

"Certainly; now or tomorrow morning."

"Suppose we go tomorrow. We might want to go south tomorrow."

They arose and left the club, taking jurisdiction to the gate of the old wall city crouching on the outskirts of the newer modern city.

"Your clerk," asked Oakley as they went down the narrow, crooked, ill-paved streets.

"A Chinese named Sun Yat said that Lin Wah, the missing servant, was seen to offer the emerald eye to a dealer in the gold beater's street."

"I know three goldsmiths in that street. It's this time to the right," said Oakley, leading the way.

The first goldsmith professed ignorance of the emerald; the second one had seen it, but dispensed its value, and the third said it had been offered him by a Cantonese two days before that the man had been seen running out of the city.

"I said to the south," was Oakley's comment.

"My impression is that it's nearer," said Langham doggedly, and something in his tone told the truth of the situation to Frank Oakley.

"Out with the whole thing, Langham," he said shortly. "What is it? Are you trailing me, or what?"

"Well, you were there, you know."

"Did Mrs. Desbrow?" Oakley choked on the words.

Langham shrugged his perfectly fitted shoulders. "No, indeed, old chap. She wouldn't listen to a word against you. But the house boy?"

Oakley laughed scornfully. "The house boy? Do you mean to say that you are holding the word of a Chinese man against mine, Langham?"

"He said he saw you," retorted the other shortly.

"Saw his grandmother?" was Oakley's cheerful reply. "You take my advice, Langham. If Mr. Desbrow got that emerald from one of the temples in south China it stands to reason that the worshippers will try to get it back."

"These old things mean more to the native Chinese than they do to the decadent mandarins. They will fight for the emerald, and they will steal it again and again until it finally remains where it originally belonged—only they will leave a trail of blood in its wake."

"Very well," said the other sharply. "Go ahead and I will follow."

"Find out for me where the temple is located and the name of the mandarin. Tomorrow morning we start for Canton, and from there we will travel cross country to the temple. Once there we can scout around and see if the emerald is there."

"Good. Let us go back."

The next morning they were on their way to Canton via Hongkong.

As the journey progressed there grew up between the two men a vague inexpressible feeling of distrust.

At last they came into the province of the mandarin who had sold the emerald eye to Mr. Desbrow and here received permission to inspect the temple.

"This man will direct you to the temple of the green idol," he said suavely, and the two young men made their adieu.

In the wake of the wooden faced servant they crossed the grassy grounds, entered the dark arch of the temple. Here their footsteps guided the sleeping echoes, and the guide grumbled because the lanterns sputtered to sudden drafts of air.

"We will look at the Buddha first, for if the stone has been returned it should be resting in the left eye socket. Odd that they should make the eyes of such precious gems and then cover them with bits of bronze or gold." Frank Oakley made this remark as he walked close behind Desbrow, who lay openly asleep.

"I'll have to see it there to believe it," said the other man obstinately.

By standing beneath the massive face one could look up and see that the half closed eyes contained a sparkling emerald, while the other one was quite empty.

"Well?" questioned Langham, with a busy smile.

"Well," retorted Frank, suddenly drawing a revolver and pressing it against the other's breast. "I'll give you just five minutes to restore the emerald eye to the idol," he said grimly.

"No! What do you mean?" shouted Langham.

"What I say. I may as well tell you that I know where it is, and I congratulate you on having distracted attention from yourself."

"Where is it?" demanded Langham. "Up with your hands!" ordered Frank, and as he spoke the other's hands were out of the way. Oakley's fingers passed deftly over the other's form. There were a bundle of letters and a cigarette case. A gold watch safe disgorged the missing jewel, and Langham did not smile when Frank drew it from its hiding place and slipped it in his own pocket, for he had determined to restore it to Mrs. Desbrow.

They separated that afternoon, Frank Oakley traveling on ahead to claim his reward and Langham to make other plans for the uncertain future.

Frank Oakley took the emerald eye back to its rightful owner, and when she mentioned a reward he talked again about love and marriage until he persuaded her to name the wedding day.

"The emerald eye is our talisman of luck," he said to her on their wedding night.

"It was the means of poor Langham's temptation and fall," murmured the lovely bride as she like all temptresses—the good or evil in the wearer have to do with its influence."

Bamboo Sap in India.

In India the sap of the female bamboo is used for medicinal purposes. "Bambaher," or "bambukhan," is said in all Indian bazaar, as it has been known from the earliest times as a medicinal agent. It is also known in Borneo and was an article of commerce with early Arab traders of the east. Its properties are said to be strengthening, tonic and cooling. It has been analyzed and has been shown to consist of a mixture of silicic acid, with traces of lime and potash. From its remarkable occurrence in the hollows of bamboo the eastern mind has long associated it with miraculous powers—London Standard.

Helping the Post Office.

In a history of the great advance in postal methods accomplished by Sir Rowland Hill is given this anecdote: To the post office at that time tiny Ambleside came one day a little to the letter to buy a stamp, and put on the letter he was about to post.

"Is this new reform going to be asked?" he asked the postmaster. "Certainly," was the reply. "It is quite established." "Oh, well, then," said the letter carrier, "I will be the thing generous support, 'give me three stamps, please.'"

Oil Prospects in Africa.

Mr. Cunningham Craig, the oil expert, who has been engaged by the Government to investigate the oil resources of the Union, has been interviewed by a Bloomsbury paper and is reported to have said that there are possibilities, but they are not very hopeful. He, however, hesitated to give a decided opinion before he saw a great deal more of the country.

Australian Oil.

As far back as 1851, at the Great Exhibition in London, oil manufactured in South Australia gained mention on account of its clearness, color and flavor. The industry is growing rapidly in South Australia, where the soil and climate are admirably adapted to the growth of olive trees.

New British Citizens.

Only 1,324 aliens became naturalized British during 1912, according to the recent report issued by the British home office. Russia supplied no fewer than 309, Germany 204 and France 23. Of New Britain, 1,223 have taken up their residence in England and Wales, 323 of them living in London.

Ostrich Farming.

The ostrich industry has taken firm root in the Union County of Natal, one firm alone having 1,500 birds. Some very handsome feathers, the product of the district, were exhibited at the recent Agricultural Shows in Maritzburg and Durban.

Aladdin's Lamp.

"Aladdin's lamp, in good working order, price £200,000," is the inscription on a card attached to a curious looking lamp exposed for sale in the shop window of a Kingston (Eng.) antique dealer.

Censorship in Turkey.

Books have been confiscated in Turkey for the most curious of reasons. "Sensational and Morbid," for instance, suffered this fate because the pet dog in the tale was called Turk.

Anachronisms.

Shakespeare refers in "Julius Caesar" to clocks more than fourteen centuries before they were invented, and makes cannon thunder in "King John" and introduces a pistol in "Henry V."

Australian Emblem.

The kangaroo has been designated as the official emblem of Australia.

Lead Pencils.

Pencils are now being skillfully constructed. When the column of graphite has been prepared for use in the pencil it is laid in a slit cut for it, covered with another piece of wood, which is glued on; then, by means of ingenious machinery, the wooden covers are reduced to the proper size for pencils and painted or varnished.

THE BALLAD OF YAADA.

The following poem taken from Toronto Saturday Night, is said to be the last written by the late E. Pauline Johnson, the Indian poetess, who died in Vancouver a little over a year ago.

There are fires on Lulu Island, and the sky is glowing.

With the pearl and purple tinting from the smouldering of peat.

And the Dream Hills lift their summits in a sweeping, hazy crescent, with the Capilano canyons at their feet.

There are fires on Lulu Island, and the smoke, unfilting fingers.

In a faded scarp of fragrance as it creeps across the day.

And the inlet and the Narrows blur beneath its silent fingers, and the canyon is enfolded in its grey.

But the sun its face is veiling like a cloistered nun at vespers;

As towards the altar candles of the night a cedar swings, and the echo of tradition wakes from slumbering and whispers.

Where the Capilano River sobs and sighs.

It was Yaada, lovely Yaada, who first taught the stream its singing.

For 'twas silent till her coming, and 'twas voiceless as the shore, but throughout where he called her, 'twas the song undying.

That the lips of lovers sang for evermore.

He was chief of all the Squamish, and he ruled the coastal waters.

And he wandered upon her people in the distant Charlotte Isles, a winsome basket weaver, a diadem of Haida daughters.

Made him captive to her singing and her smiles.

Till his hands forgot to leave, and his weapons laid their lasting.

Till his stormy eyes allured her from the land of Totem Poles, till she followed where he called her, followed with a woman's trust.

To the canyon where the Capilano rolls.

And the women of the Haidas plied in vain their magic power.

Wailed for many moons her absence, wailed for many moons their prayer.

"Bring her back, O Squamish women, bring us to us ever Yaada down!"

But the silence only answered their despair.

But the men were swift to battle, swift to cross the coastal water.

Swift to war and swift of weapon, swift to paddle trackless miles.

Crept with stealth along the canyon, sought for her from her cave and her boat.

Once she sailed to the distant Charlotte Isles.

But she faded, ever faded, and her eyes were ever turning.

Southward toward the Capilano, while that voice she had hushed its song.

And her riven heart repeated words that on her lips were burning.

"Not to friend—but unto woman I belong."

"Give me back my Squamish lover, though you hate, I still must love him."

Give me back the rugged canyon where my heart must ever be—

Where his hand awaits a coming, and the Dream Hills lift their arms.

And the Capilano learned its song from me."

But through long-forgotten seasons, moons too many to be numbered.

He yet waited by the canyon—she yet called across the years.

And the soul within her yearned that through centuries had slumbered.

"Woke to seek a song of woman's love."

For her little, lonely spirit, sought the Capilano's voice.

When she died among the Haidas in the land of Totem Poles.

And you yet may hear her singing to her lover-like companion, if you listen to the river as it rolls.

But 'tis only when the pearl and purple smoke is laid: swinging.

From the fires on Lulu Island to the hazy Mountain crest.

That the soul uttered its sobbing echoes through the river's singing.

In the Capilano canyon of the West.

Looking Ahead.

"I suppose you take a deep personal interest in the education of your daughter?"

"Oh, yes. I am doing my best to have her fitted to be the wife of a man with a little education. You see, my husband has patented an invention that is almost sure to make us immensely wealthy."

A Huge Seal.

It was reported to be the largest seal ever taken on the Cape Breton coast has just been taken at Margate by a fisher and son. It weighed 800 lbs. and was measured 7 feet 10 inches in length by 6 feet 4 inches in width.

Dead Authors.

Accepted handbooks and histories of American literature pay too much attention to doubly dead worthies, whose books are not interesting and miss out of hand knowledge of contemporary excellence. There is a way of accounting for it. Every generation, except the last, independent spirit in its looks with too Chinese reverence upon its ancestors—John Albert Macy in Spirit of American Literature.

GAY WAISTCOATS.

Strong Color Note Costume Feature of Season.

DEMURE TAILORED EFFECT.

This demure little tailored suit of lovely taupe colored Jacquard worked and moiré fabric draped over a skirt of the same tone has collar and cuffs of machine embroidery that follows the color scheme daintly. A vest of crepe silk is virid against the soft gray and cream hues.

What's What in Bathing Suits.

Never has the Anglo-Saxon eye gazed upon such startling bathing costumes and accessories as those designed for this season's wear. Emerald green tafetas, scarlet satin with Scotch plaid trimmings, bishop's purple satin, black tafetas with adornments of ecruist design were some of the color schemes seen recently at a fashionable seaside resort.

For head coverings there were quaint bowties, caps and hoods of ribbed silk or satin in the gayest of tints. Stockings of dazling green, purple and blue were displayed with silk and satin bathing shoes laced with satin ribbon in the prevailing color scheme.

Under these suits were worn bloomers to match, finished below the knee with a wide band of contrasting trim. A purple satin suit had frills of white linen printed with Jonsey flowers, and the unmistakable resemblance drew from scores of women the exclamation, "Pantaleoni!"

Among the accessories pictured must be noted the courage bouquet of rub red roses.

Described the Town.

A tourist motoring through a small Scotch town was pulled up for excessive speed.

"Didn't you see that notice, 'Dead Slow!'" inquired the policeman.

"Course I did," returned the visitor, "but I thought it referred to you blooming town."

ONTARIO WOMAN'S FORTIFIE

Freud From That Weak, Languid, Always Tired Feeling, by Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound.

Thessalon, Ont.—"I cannot speak too highly of your medicine. When my appetite is poor and I have that weak, languid, always tired feeling, I get a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and it builds me up, gives me strength, and restores me to perfect health again. It is truly a blessing to weak women, and I cannot speak highly enough of it. I take pleasure in recommending it to others."

Mrs. ANNIE CAMERON, Thessalon, Ont.

Women who are suffering from those distressing ailments peculiar to their sex should not lose sight of these facts or doubt the ability of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to restore their health.

There are probably hundreds of thousands, perhaps millions of women in the United States who have been benefited by this famous old remedy, which was produced from roots and herbs over 30 years ago by a woman to relieve woman's suffering. If you are sick and need such a medicine, why don't you try it?

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (consultant) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

Grand Old Man

The Mexican who has just died at the alleged age of 185 has been predeceased (according to American news) during the past dozen years or so by a citizen of New Brunswick aged 135, and a comparative youngster of Valley Mills Texas, whose age was only 115.

The man in the street will be pardoned for thinking that the 185 has been inadvertently transposed from crickets' report. Among ex-Biblical heroes probably Old Parr and Henry Jenkins will stand as the best authenticated instances of superlongevity. The monument at Bolton (Yorkshire) records that Jenkins attained the amazing age of 169.

A man of eighty-six, observed Mr. Doolley recently, looks down on a man of eighty-five, and receives his callow opinions with a supercilious smile; and for that reason probably if not because he was a fisherman Jenkins was able to give evidence on oath concerning matters 140 years or so previous. As a hale young centenarian he was in the habit of swimming the Swale with ease, and as a boy he is said to have taken a horse-load of arrows to be forwarded north for the battle of Flodden.

Relief for the Depressed.—Physical and mental depression usually have their origin in a disordered state of the stomach and liver, as when these organs are deranged in their action the whole system is affected. Try Farmine's Vegetable Pills. They revive the digestive processes, act beneficially on the nerves and restore the spirits as no other pills will. They are cheap, simple and sure, and the effects are lasting.

The diner thrust the tip of his knife into the yellow disc which the waiter had brought him. He held it up to the light and examined it while the waiter stood by anxiously. Then the diner resolutely returned the yellow disc to his plate and scraped some of it upon his bread.

I take thee, he said, for butter or worse.

THE TRUE CAUSE OF RHEUMATISM

Due to Acid in the Blood—Can Only be Cured Through the Blood.

Not many years ago even doctors thought that rheumatism was only a local pain caused by exposure to cold or wet. Now they know that the trouble is caused by the blood becoming tainted with uric acid. This condition of the blood causes the muscles to contract, stiffens the joints and irritates the nerves. If not promptly treated the stiffness spreads and the pain grows worse until you are a helpless cripple, tortured day and night.

If the disease touches the heart it means sudden death. You cannot cure rheumatism with liniments, plasters or hot cloths, as so many try to do. You must go right to the root of the trouble in the blood. The scientific way to cure rheumatism is to take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, which make new, rich blood that goes right to the root of the trouble. They sweep out the poisonous acid, loosen the aching joints and muscles and bring ease and freedom where before had been pain and misery.

Miss Beulah Sherry, Moreport, Ont., says: "Following an attack of measles I took inflammatory rheumatism. My joints became swollen and the pain was almost unendurable. I doctored with two doctors, but the pain was only relieved while I was taking their medicine, and soon returned. For six months I continued to suffer in this way. Then I tried electric pads, but they failed to do me any good. Finally a friend persuaded me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I had not been taking them long before I found relief. I continued using the Pills for a time and soon found myself in perfect health and feeling like a new person. I never lost an opportunity to recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills as I cannot say enough in favor of them."

Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

St. Joseph, Lewis, July 14, 1903. Minard's Liniment Co., Limited.

Gentlemen,—I was badly kicked by my horse last May and after using several preparations on my leg nothing would do. My leg was black as jet. I was laid up in bed for a fortnight and could not walk. After using three bottles of your MINARD'S LINIMENT I was perfectly cured, so that I could start on the road.

Stopping the Fight

Village Grocer—What are you running for, sonny?

Boy—I'm trying to keep two fellows from fighting.

Village Grocer—Who are the persons?

Boy—Bill Perkins and me.

Sportsman's Luck

So you took a day off and went duck shooting.

Yes, replied the man who insists on being cheerful.

Have any luck?

Certainly. A day off is luck enough.

A WONDERFUL DISCOVERY

An eminent scientist the other day, gave his opinion that the most wonderful discovery of recent years was the discovery of Zam-Buk. Just think! As soon as a single thin layer of Zam-Buk is applied to a wound or a sore, such injury is insured against blood poisoning! Not one species of microbe has been found that Zam-Buk does not kill!

Then again, As soon as Zam-Buk is applied to a sore, or a cut, or to skin disease, it stops the stinging. That is why children are such friends of Zam-Buk. They care nothing for the absence of the stinging. All they know is that Zam-Buk stops their pain. Mothers should never forget this.

Again, As soon as Zam-Buk is applied to a wound or a sore, the cells beneath the skin's surface are so stimulated that new healthy tissue is quickly formed. This forming of fresh healthy tissue from below is Zam-Buk's secret of healing. The tissue thus formed is worked up to the surface and literally casts off the diseased tissue above it. This is why Zam-Buk cures are permanent.

Only the other day Mr. Marsh, of 101 Desjardins Ave., Montreal, called upon the Zam-Buk Co. and told them that for over twenty-five years he had been a martyr to eczema. His hands were at one time so covered with sores that he had to sleep in gloves. Four years ago Zam-Buk was introduced to him, and in a few months it cured him. Today—over three years after his cure of a disease he had for twenty-five years—he is still cured, and has no trace of any return of the eczema!

All druggists sell Zam-Buk at 50c. box, or we will send free trial box if you enclose this advertisement and a fee stamp (to pay return postage). Address Zam-Buk Co., Toronto.

HOW TO TREAT ALL SKIN TROUBLE

Greasy Ointments No Use—Must Be Cured Through the Blood

It is not a good thing for people with a tendency to have pimples and a blotchy complexion to smear their faces with greasy ointments. In fact they couldn't do anything worse, because the greasy ointments clog the pores of the skin, making the disease worse. When there is an irritating rash a soothing borax wash may help allay the pain of itching, but of course it doesn't cure the trouble. Skin complaints arise from an impure condition of the blood and will persist until the blood is purified. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have cured many cases of eczema and skin diseases because they make new, rich blood that drives out the impurities, clears the skin and imparts a glow of health. The following proof is offered.

Mrs. Fred Tremble, Gunter, Ont., says: "For more than a year I was steadily afflicted with salt rheum or eczema. My hands were so sore that I could not put them in water without the skin cracking open. I tried all sorts of ointments recommended for the trouble, but they did not do me a particle of good. I was told Dr. Williams' Pink Pills would cure the trouble, and began taking them. I took the Pills steadily for six or eight weeks and they completely cured the trouble. This was several years ago and I have never been bothered with it since."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Suffragette Jealousy

A small girl, one of a party from a local girls' club, was playing her first visit to the art gallery. After studying the Venus in the entrance hall, she turned to one of the women who accompanied the party: "Are you seen that there monument? Eh? The suffragettes are back at it! The arms are all knocked off."

Prairie Fire.

What might have been a very serious prairie fire was started by the carelessness of two men who were on their way to Athabasca. They passed through Crossfield on Thursday night last with three horses attached to a hay rack and got on the wrong trail, striking east instead of keeping north. Putting up for the night in Stafford's barn. Next morning before going very far they lit a fire to make coffee for breakfast, after which they extinguished the fire, throwing some of the pieces of wood that had been burnt and they surmised they had extinguished on the rack. This appears to have been the cause of the prairie fire. It is surmised that one of the pieces of wood was smouldering and owing to the jolting of the rack fell off and set fire to the dry grass. They called at Scholefield's to ask the way, and a short time after Mrs. Scholefield happened to look to see if the men had made the right turn, when she noticed there was smoke rising on the trail they had followed. Mrs. Scholefield at once phoned to some of the nearest neighbors also to Constable Birch of the R.N.W.M. Police, giving him a description of the men, he at once remembered having seen them in town the day previous, and he at once set off in pursuit and soon had them in charge. Taking them back to the scene of the fire, on arriving there, however, it was discovered that it had been got under control by willing workers and was almost extinguished after doing considerable damage to cut grain, etc. The constable arrived in town with the men and they were brought in court and remanded till Saturday.

At the hearing on Saturday before E. H. Morrow, J.P., George W. Pinger was fined $25 and costs, on the evidence of several witnesses and a certain amount of conflicting evidence on the part of the two men concerned.

Crossfield, Alta.

To the Editor.

Dear Sir,—Your correspondent of last week says: "Anyone who says our Village Council is asleep doesn't own any cows!" I personally have not heard it suggested that they were asleep; but we do know now that one man at least is awake, namely, Mr. George Becker, who apparently has just awakened to the fact that there is a Pound Law in force. I suppose the gentle reminder that he has received from time to time when he has paid little fines for calves were just little dreams. But, when at last, the Council got tired of seeing a herd of cows in the streets, etc., and blew up the Village Constable for not doing his duty by enforcing the law in a more energetic manner, and a small herd was at once placed in the pound, verily it was not a dream, but a rude awakening, and now having paid the fine he is quite awake. I am sorry that collections have been bad with Mr. Becker, but, if you have been asleep since May 21 (when the bye-law was passed) what do you expect? I personally am greatly indebted to Mr. Becker for his donations to my collections. I should like to ask the gentleman, now that he is awake, what cows were driven across the village limits, and which limits does he mean? What mare and colt he speaks of (unless he means the ones belonging to our worthy Chairman and which I had the pleasure to impound), and does he speak of the cows which were on the C.P.R. track that he told me about? If so, I consider the C.P.R. are quite capable of looking after them. Please tell your correspondent that my horses which were loose the day he so well remembers broke down a fence before getting on the prairie; and I once heard of G. B. putting up a fence to keep his cows in any pasture? Also, why did he not send one of his children, if he was not feeling quite awake, to put them in the pound, and thus earn 50 cents, which would have helped his collections quite a bit, and would have saved me from annoying a most friendly neighbor, and a walk past the well-known dairy (do not charge advertisement rates for this Mr. Editor).

With regard to Mr. Becker's complaint at your not publishing a report of the Village Council Meetings or Smokers, I will leave that to you to answer, but I do know that you could not publish any new bye-laws since May as there have not been any passed since that date.

Yours truly,

FRANK MOSSOP,
(Village Constable.)

ALL PROTECTIONISTS

Both Parties Against Free Trade in Australia

The Labor Government which was defeated in Australia has for years maintained a protective tariff for revenue producing purposes and the benefit of domestic industries and workmen. On the eve of polling the Liberal leader of the Opposition, Sir Joseph Cook, abandoned Free Trade and committed himself to Protection.

Speaking for the party The Melbourne Argus said: "The Liberal undertaking is to maintain the present protective policy. No amount of dishonest argument or word-twisting can construe this into meaning that the present tariff is to be amended by them in the direction of Free Trade."
